

FUNES CON VERSATIONS

21.04.21

19-20 CET

18-19 GMT

FAX MACHINE

with SEBASTIANO FABBRINI

Today an entirely obsolete piece of office equipment, forced out by the unstoppable digital force of the computer, the fax machine was the first technology to bear the promise of long-distance information transfer and early forms of remote collaboration. On April 21st, Funes will be in conversation with Sebastiano Fabbrini about the nature of architecture via the fax. What happens to the authorship of architectural drawings once they are passed through the mouth of a fax machine? How was the global office generated through the possibilities of faxing architecture? What were the political values at stake in the making of a project through transnational faxing?

VALERIA FEDERIGHI, from the Politecnico di Torino, will also join the conversation as respondent.
